HALL CAIN'S GREAT PLAY:

"THE CHRISTIAN"

The opening scene shows the Isle of Man; Glory Quayle, a gay hearted country girl is about to leave for London to become a hospital nurse—even the great love of John Storm, a nobleman's son, is unable to restrain her. He, feeling that the world holds nothing for him after her refusal, decides to take the vows and become a priest against his father's wishes. Glory becomes a successful music hall star through the influence of wealthy men; Storm a worker among the poor and fallen of Soho. He tries to save Glory from what to him seems inevitable disgrace but it is only until she realizes the real character of her associates that she is able to find her way back to her true home in the arms of John Storm in
